ALLIED WASTE NAMED ONE OF AMERICA'S MOST TRUSTWORTHY COMPANIES FOR SECOND YEAR IN A ROW

Phoenix, AZ – April 1, 2008 – Allied Waste Industries, Inc. (NYSE: AW), a leading waste services company, announced today that it was recognized by Forbes magazine as one of America's most trustworthy companies based on its transparent accounting statements and conservative accounting procedures. Allied Waste was one of only 33 companies named to both the 2007 and 2006 rankings and remains the only company listed from the waste services industry.

"It is extremely gratifying to be recognized two years in a row for our financial reporting and accounting practices," said Peter S. Hathaway, Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer for Allied Waste. "Today, more than ever, investors need to feel confident in the integrity of a company's overall accounting statements."

The ranking of 100 American companies was based on the analysis of Audit Integrity, a financial analytics company. The Audit Integrity Top 100 was selected from more than 8,000 public corporations the firm tracks with quarterly ratings and reports. Audit Integrity ratings incorporate both financial and non-financial measures.
